NEGROES INSIST ON BETTER SCHOOL

Say They Were Promised Decided Improvement at Last Commencement.

Concerted action on the part of prominent negroes of Memphis, supported by influential white men, is expected to develop at an early meeting of the board of education in an effort to have the board make some move better to equip the negro high school. The negro high school is at present housed in the old Peabody school, and complaint has been made of the condition of the building and its surroundings.

Negroes interested in the matter have declared that a new high school was promised them at the graduating exercises last year, and they are now seeking the fulfillment of that promise. Just what form the request of the negroes will take has not yet developed, but an urgent call has gone out and concerted action will be taken to bring about a betterment of conditions at the negro high school.

Concerning the building and its location, Walter C. Harris, in a recent issue of the Memphis Times wrote: "The condition of the old high school is indeed bad. It is among the many buildings condemned by the national board of school surveyors. This, the old Peabody building, is worn and dilapidated, the plastering is almost daily falling off, the light and ventilation are bad. It is impossible to keep the building heated at normal, thus the students must suffer.

There is no auditorium or assembly room. This makes it impossible for the students to learn by lectures as are accustomed to be given in high schools. There is no suitable place for devotion.

The location is poor, unsanitary, uninviting and is a detriment to the atmosphere that is altogether against moral development of the students. More than this, it is a source of opportunity is given to the bad to corrupt the entire students in the wrong direction. Going to and from school they come in contact with characters that the young should be kept clear of."

Hernando Postal Robbery Becomes Closed Incident

Government officials charged with the arrest and conviction of the men who broke into the postoffice at Hernando, Miss., and attempted to rob it several weeks ago, have exhausted virtually every clue that they found and though the case has not been dropped from their list they are practically at a standstill.

Suspicion rests upon several men. It is stated, but sufficient evidence to justify the issuance of a warrant is lacking. The postmaster of Hernando paid a visit to Memphis Wednesday and conferred with federal officials in regard to the matter but no action was taken as the few clues left by the two robbers have long since been followed up. It will be recalled that two men broke into the Hernando postoffice and attempted to loot the safe. The noise they made aroused the telephone operator and she gave the alarm and citizens engaged in a running battle with the robbers. It was believed at the time that one of the robbers had been wounded, but the truth of this belief has never developed.

WOOD SAYS ARMY OF 350,000 ENOUGH

Central Department Commander at Odds With Baker's Contentions.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—A regular army of 350,000, equipped with a system of universal military training that provides an organized reserve is ample for the present needs of the country, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the central department, declared yesterday before the senate military committee. In making his recommendations, Gen. Wood also differed from the war department in the amount of training to be given reservists. He held that three months' training was too short and recommended six months. The one point on which he was in accord with the department appeared to be the need of a strong general staff, although he said he had not given the administration his sufficient attention to discuss it in detail.

The central department commander also favored an independent air service, but did not approve creation of an air ministry or cabinet officer to head the department. The air forces, he said, worked at times under the army or the navy and at times alone.

A separate organization could be thrown wholly to the aid of either of these services as conditions warrant. The main point in preparation of the army was to create a large equipment for 400,000 reservists was on hand, he said, adding "that was where we fell down in this war."

Questioned as to the need of six lieutenant-generals and 12 major-generals of the regular establishment as proposed by the war department, Gen. Wood said the country would "pay them, that's all." One of his main objections to the war department plan, he added, was that it filled up all vacancies, leaving nothing for new men in war, and that it discouraged such men of a stimulus to good work.

Urging his six months' training period Gen. Wood said:

"To send soldiers to war without training is to double your dead."

Later he said, however, that experience might show that the period could be shortened and Chairman Woodworth pointed out that the department proposed exclusive military training while Gen. Wood had urged vocational training as well.
